

Summer Assignments 2010

Pre-Reading Journal 1

Directions:

Respond to the prompt below. The standard length of a journal entry is 1 full page (going onto the second), doubled spaced, in 12 Times New Roman font. All margins should be 1". You may certainly write more, however, less will cause points to be deducted.

Prompt:

Do you believe humans control their own destiny (future), or do humans simply following a path that is controlled by a higher power (like God)? Explain your belief and where your belief came from. Who influenced it? Can it change? Has it changed already?

Pre-Reading Journal 2

Directions:

Respond to the prompt below. The standard length of a journal entry is 1 full page (going onto the second), doubled spaced, in 12 Times New Roman font. All margins should be 1". You may certainly write more, however, less will cause points to be deducted.

Prompt:

Writers often use colors or objects to represent larger ideas or themes. Think of one object and one color that you think could have deeper meaning in your own life. Write about this object and color.

End- of- Book Journal 1

Directions:

Respond to the prompt below. The standard length of a journal entry is 1 full page (going onto the second), doubled spaced, in 12 Times New Roman font. All margins should be 1". You may certainly write more, however, less will cause points to be deducted. You must use direct quotes to fortify your position. Every direct quote requires a parenthetical/internal citation.

Prompt:

Find a scene in the book where a character looks into a mirror or sees his/her reflection in something. Explain what we learn about the character from this scene. Explain what the character learns about his/herself.

End-of-Book Journal 2

Directions:

Respond to the prompt below. The standard length of a journal entry is 1 full page (going onto the second), doubled spaced, in 12 Times New Roman font. All margins should be 1". You may certainly write more, however, less will cause points to be deducted. You must use direct quotes to fortify your position. Every direct quote requires a parenthetical/internal citation.

Prompt:

Compare Chillingworth's actions to Dimmesdale's. Who do you think is a more "objectionable" character?